Alexander Cavalié Mercer soldier and artist (1783-1868). A careful observer, Mercer was a very good amateur artist and it was this ability that he drew upon when writing about his experience in the Waterloo campaign; Commanding the 9th Brigade Royal Artillery, his journal, published posthumously in 1870 by his son, is an excellent description of the Lowlands and the Netherlands as the English found them in 1815, but it records only that portion of the battle which immediately affected Mercer.

A unique collection of newspaper articles relating to the Boer War. Following daily the sieges of Ladysmith, Mafeking and Kimberley, the individual campaigns, 'Latest from the Bieseged', the advances, etc. as events occurred. The articles are extracted from The Standard (J.B. Whigham, Churchill), The Morning Post (Colonel Baden-Powell, John Stuart, Winston Churchill, Edward Frederick 'Doggy' Knight, Major F.D. Baillie), The Daily Telegraph (Bennet Burleigh, John Grenfell, Mr McHugh), The Daily News (Bennet Burleigh, Stevens, Nevinson, Major F.D. Baillie, and Hugh Pearse), The Times (Lionel James), they are loosely in chronological order with pencil notations noting the paper they were published in, providing a fascinating contemporary account of the war as it unfolded.

With many of Churchill's articles, referenced in Ronald I. Cohen's 'Bibliography of the Writings of Sir Winston Churchill', (published by Thoemes 2006); C74b, C75, C76, C77, C84, C86, C87, C90, C92, C93, C94, C95, C96, C97, C99, C100, C101, C104a, C105b, C107, C113, C115, C116, C117, C118, C119, C123, C124, C125, C126, C127, C128, C129, C130, C131, C132, C133, C134, C135, C136, C137, C138, C140, C144, C147, C148.1, C148.2, C.149, C150, C151, C152, C153, C155, C156, C157, C158, C159, C160, C161, C163, C165, C166, C167, C169, C172, C175, C176, C177, C181, C182, C184, C186, C187, C189, C195, C196, C199, C200, C201, C202, C203.2, C204.3, C205, C206, C207.2, C210, C211, C212, C213, C214.

Sm. 4to. [iv] + 48 photocopied leaves typed one side only. Without leaf numbered pp.42. Enclosed in wrapps. £125.00

Apparently published November 1995 and edited by Trevor J. Davies and in Aldermaston, Berks. : Roberts Publications, [1996].

Preface: 'This is not written day by day, but in some cases two or three days will be found to ? in sequence. The main work is the ? of notes taken at the beginning of the siege for the first part, and then the second part or so, while I was in hospital it was that I recommenced my notes keeping them going ever since. The first part may be more interesting from the fact that I wrote it under shell fire just after the arrival of the 94- pounder since known as "Big Ben". This record is not meant as a work for publication but purely for the gratification of my friends and for my own satisfaction ... Mafeking 11:3:00.'

With an additional 10 leaves (some photocopies) from a (British?) official detailing life in Kenya.
